Berkeley Public Library Wants You Ba-a-a-ack!

Why? Because You Are Our Valentines!

Fine Amnesty: February 14 through February 29, 2008

If you've found that Berkeley Public Library fines have gotten away from you, and you hesitate to use the library, please take note: Berkeley Public Library will be having a fine amnesty period beginning on Valentine's Day, February 14, 2008, and ending with a jump after Leap Year, February 29, 2008. We can also help you work out a payment schedule if you have lost a book or other library material. We want you back using our library!

Plus, this is a great opportunity to get reacquainted with a terrific friend, the Berkeley Public Library. Learn about our wonderful new programs and services, including:

- Brand new library card designs – if you already have a card, get a new card for only $1
- More free computers to use inside all our libraries -- you can use them even with fines!
- Our newly designed and fabulous website – great links to all kinds of treasures
- LINK+ -- put books on hold through our catalog from throughout California & Nevada
- Wonderful free library programs for people of all ages and interests

For questions regarding the Amnesty, call 510-981-6100. For accessibility information, call (510) 981-6107 or TTY (510) 548-1240 or go to <http://berkeleypubliclibrary.org>
